calendars 101

Spiral Binding

The classic look of spiral binding uses a single wire coiled through the calendar to hold it together.

Twin Loop Binding

This binding uses two wires crimped closed to allow the calendar to be flat on a wall or on a desk.

Stapled Binding

Choose stapled binding, also called saddle stitching, for an economical version of a calendar that is also perfect for direct mail.

Tinning

Large commercial calendars can take a beating. Tinning, a process of crimping pages of a calendar with a metal strip, adds durability and keeps your calendar hanging neatly.

Window Ad

A window ad prints in the middle of the calendar, putting your message at the center of attention.

Backmount

The last page of the calendar is made of stiffer material to stand up to daily wear and tear. It has places for notes, phone numbers, and your ad at the very bottom.

boost your knowledge

Drop Ad

The last page of the calendar is longer than the grid and drops down below so your ad can be seen all year.

Personalization

Personalize each calendar to connect with customers on a first-name basis.

Dateblock Overprint

Add copy to any calendar date to connect customers to special company events, celebrations, or other noteworthy information.

Custom Insert

Insert an extra sheet in front of the calendar. Use it for a seasonal letter, coupons, or anything your customers will want to know.

Some options are only available on select products.

we're here to pump you up

Phantom

Add a screened-back version of your company logo or other special design to add impact all year.

OBC Printing

Use the outside back cover to say even more. It's a blank slate to share company history, include a service area map, and make more connections.

Border Color

A signature company color can be the calendar's accent color to bring out the brand even more.

Insight Backmount

Select from one of our 13 different themes of Insight Backmounts to add a page of tips and insights to your calendar.

Some options are only available on select products.
